

Chapter 9

PRACTICE AND REVIEW

1. This entire book always praises Roman literature.
2. These men therefore were thanking those goddesses yesterday.
3. I shall now write that about the vices of that queen, and that woman will pay the penalty.
4. Neither man will then give a full supply of money to the other.
5. Can the glory of any land be everlasting?
6. The work of one man will never overcome these troops.
7. The character of that writer was too evil.
8. Nevertheless, no teachers dared to teach true things under that man.
9. Will peace be strong in our fatherland after this victory?
10. While those men remain there, some do nothing, others learn.
11. Cicero de gloria alterius uxorisque scribebat.
12. Tota civitas fratri huius viri soli gratias agebat.
13. Propter istos animos illi nullas copias in haec loca cras ducent.
14. Uterne liber vitia horum temporum vincere poterit?

SENTENTIAE ANTIQUAE

1. Where can I now see those women?
2. This man will lead that virgin into matrimony.
3. I give the palm branch to this decision.
4. We truly love that man's virtue.
5. You alone can help this man.
6. The punishment of that one man will relieve this illness of the state, but the danger will always remain.
7. These men truly think about the destruction of this state and of the entire world.
8. There is no place for either man in this land.
9. Not only does the outcome teach this – that is the teacher of fools! – but reason also (does).
