

Chapter 11 discussion

PRACTICE AND REVIEW

1. They sent him to her with the other farmer yesterday.
2. You, however, now love his happy daughter.
3. Because of friendship, I do this. What will you do, my friend?
4. Will you dare to send the same letter to him tomorrow?
5. Lead me to his student (to that student), please.
6. After his great labor, we shall give him great thanks.
7. Do you show truth in this book?
8. Therefore, dare to always be the same.
9. Does the nature of our character come from us alone?
10. While reason will lead us, we shall be strong and accomplish many things well.
11. We find that fear in this man.
12. Without labor, however, no peace will come into their state.
13. Eagerness not only for money but also for pleasure drags humans (around) too much; some can overcome these desires, others cannot.
14. Vita eius populo toti semper erat cara.
15. Eas et amicos earum in hoc loco mecum saepe invenies.
16. Nos autem copias eorum in ea via nunc capiemus.
17. Quoniam eadem de te et aliis eius sororibus ei dicebam, frater tuus non audiebat.

SENTENTIAE ANTIQUAE

1. Your virtue makes me friendly to you.
2. It alone is precious to me.
3. If you healthy, that is well; I am healthy.
4. What is well for you is well for me.
5. "Good-bye." "And you good-bye (well)."
6. What do these men now think of you?
7. Everyone thinks the same thing.
8. I see that none of them is a friend of you today.
9. The men were able to see Cicero's head on the Rostra.
10. Not all men love the same things or have the same desires and pursuits.
11. I can live neither with you nor without you.
12. A true friend is a "second self."