

Short Bio

Magdalena A.K. Muir, B.A., J.D., LL.M.

Dr. Muir has over 20 years' experience in Arctic, energy and water issues in the Americas and internationally. Dr. Muir has been awarded a Fulbright Scholarship to examine and develop pilot projects for renewable energy and desalination in the Americas. She is Research Associate at the Arctic Institute of North America, University of Calgary; Adjunct Professor at Johns Hopkins University in Washington DC; and Associate Professor, Aarhus University and affiliated there with the Arctic Research Centre and the Centre for Energy Technologies. Under the Fulbright Scholarship, she is also Adjunct Visiting Professor with the Columbia Climate Center and the Earth Institute at Columbia University