Early Intervention and Telehealth for Young Children with ASD

March 9, noon till 1 p.m.

Mr. Juarez will describe early childhood initiatives in Tennessee for young children with autism spectrum disorders and their families. He’ll also address specific initiatives that have incorporated telehealth as a means for delivering services and offering training to meet families’ and providers’ needs.

He will discuss the progress made by his team and community partners in developing these services, lessons learned, and suggestions for Delaware, as we launch similar new initiatives.

Sign up today. See you Thursday!

Enroll at https://goo.gl/3d8qZV or call Zach Davis at 302-831-3632.

Location: Center for Disabilities Studies, Room 132
461 Wyoming Road, Newark

Accommodations: Requested accommodations will be provided. You’re welcome to bring a bag lunch.

Pablo Juarez, M.Ed
Director of the Vanderbilt Kennedy Center’s Treatment and Research Institute for Autism Spectrum Disorders (TRIAD)
Recipient of the Arc’s Educator of the Year Award