VIDEO	AUDIO
Chief Ogden	On-camera: Hello, my name is Patrick Ogden and I serve the University of Delaware as Chief of Police.
	The purpose of this video is to educate members of our community about three essential options to consider and what to expect from law enforcement during an active shooter scenario.
	The time spent reviewing this information could assist you in developing the mindset necessary for you to survive an incident involving a violent intruder.
Graphic: "Warning: Viewer discretion advised. The following video contains violent content.
The term Run Hide Fight is a registered trademark of the city of Houston.
Special thanks to the City of Houston Mayor's Office of Public Safety and Homeland Security."
Campus shots: Old College, Football game.	Intense music:
	VO (Capt. Pires): The University of Delaware is home to historic landmarks and lifelong traditions.
Approach of suspect through campus and entering a building, ultimately drawing his gun	VO: But in an instant this scenic campus could become the backdrop to a scene that happens all too often across the country.
Captain Pires	On-camera: Chances are you'll never face a situation like this one. But if you do – you need to be prepared. I'm Captain Jason Pires from the University of Delaware Police and I'm here to help you improve your chances of surviving an active shooter or similar emergency.
Training footage	VO: The University of Delaware Police train countless hours to be prepared for emergency situations such as this. Our number one priority is to keep you safe.
Capt. Pires	On-camera: Make no mistake – you can survive an active shooter incident by remembering and planning ahead to take three important steps – RUN, HIDE, FIGHT.
Graphic: Surviving An Active Shooter (or similar emergency) Presented by The University of Delaware Police Department	Music swell:
911 Dispatch Center	911 Operator: 911, where is your emergency?

Title: Surviving an Active Shooter Situation of Similar Emergency

911 Center sending an Alert	VO: If an active shooter or similar emergency requires the campus community to take immediate action to stay safe, our emergency management division will send what's called a UD ALERT. Please make sure you sign up to receive these important messages.
Police Officer driving	Police Officer on portable radio: Activate a UD Alert
Graphic: UD Alerts can arrive as: Texts, e-mails, Voice mails. Phone screenshot of UD Alert.	VO: These alerts are sent via text message or email as soon as a threat is determined.
Office situation, coworkers receive Alert and run	VO: A UD Alert will contain the most accurate information available at the time, but an active shooter (or violent intruder) situation evolves rapidly and known details may be limited. That is why it is important for you to remain observant, and use your senses to be attentive to your surroundings at all times.
Getting out of the office, shooter just misses seeing them	VO: If you encounter an active shooter or receive a UD ALERT affecting your area, the first and best option to survive is run. GET OUT. Quickly and safely evacuate the area.
Office personnel run outside	VO: If you can get out – do it. Scatter and run. Get as far away as you can. Once you're safe, call 911
One of the office personnel calls 911	VO: Make sure you tell the 911 Operator, who may be located within the city or county's dispatch center, that you are on the University of Delaware's campus.
Students and Instructor in a lab	VO: Running away should always be your first priority, but what happens if you hear gunshots and you are unable to get out?
Classroom	Gunshots are heard

Classroom – Instructor and students silently react	VO: Your second reaction should be to hide. If you are in a room, lock the door if there is a lock. Look for something to barricade entry points.
	Turn off lights. Silence your cell phone. The idea is to make it as hard as possible for the shooter to see you, find you or get to you.
	And always spread out, don't huddle together. That creates one easy target.
Classroom student hiding under desk.	Student under desk: The Alert says the shooter is in the building.
Captain Pires	On-camera: If running isn't an option, and hiding isn't an option, there's one final reaction that you should only use as a last resort if confronted by the shooter. FIGHT.
Classroom with students bracing for a fight	On-camera: Find anything to use as a weapon. A fire extinguisher, scissors, a chair. Fighting back is a last resort, but if it's between you and the shooter, we want you to survive.
Officers arrive on scene	VO: When preparing yourself mentally for this fight, remember something. Statistically, active shooters are apprehended or eliminated in the first five minutes of the incident.
	Once notified, our officers will respond to stop the shooter.
Classroom – shooter enters room	VO: You only need to fight until they arrive, and that could be sixty seconds away – the most important minute of your life.
Captain Pires	On-camera: It's scary to think about, but an active shooter is something that we all need to be prepared for.
Office personnel and students in hallways and classroom checking out surroundings i.e. Exit signs, escape routes, looking for a weapon such	VO: Whether you're a student, or a member of our faculty or staff, take time to know your surroundings.
as a fire extinguisher	Know at least two exits out of your room and building.
	Take different routes into and out of your building to become familiar with every possible escape route.
	Look around in the room you're in right now, find areas where you can hide or items you could use as weapons.
Captain Pires	On-camera: Three simple words could save lives so remember
Graphic & Officers taking shooter into custody	VO: RUN, HIDE, FIGHT
	Police Officer: Get on the ground! Get on the Ground!
	Music