New Arc Academy Camp Robotics Instructor

A robotics instructor is needed for the 2017 New Arc Academy, a two-week summer camp on the University of Delaware’s Newark campus for 4th through 7th graders. The camp will run weekdays from July 24 through August 4, 2017, 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. This year’s theme is marine sciences.

During the course of a day, the instructor will be responsible for teaching four groups of approximately 15 campers each on how to program LEGO Mindstorms NXT and EV3 robots. The instructor is part of a team of five educators and two assistants who instruct approximately 60 participants. The instructor is required to work from 8:30 a.m. until approximately 3:30 p.m. those two weeks. In preparation for the camp, instructors are also expected to attend a couple of Saturday morning planning meetings, scheduled according to instructor availability. Ideal applicants will be teachers with a degree in education, computer science, or engineering. Applicants should be dependable and have transportation.
